

Ufudu Office Complex brought to life - Site revisit

In September, a couple of our executives from Ufudu Zambia revisited one of our clients in Lusaka, to see the prefabricated modular buildings that we produced for the World Food Program earlier this year and determine whether the utility is working well for the client.

While visiting the site to see how it looked six months after handover, we were pleased to note that our products have been used to bring their facility to life in a beautiful and modern office complex that allows them to thrive and positively impact the lives of millions of people in the southern African region as they continue to address hunger and promote food security.

In March this year, we completed and delivered new 480 square metre offices in the Zambian capital for the World Food Program. Made from 16 fully modified shipping containers, the large office block was constructed to exact specifications and fully kitted out with all of the high-end features one would typically find in a contemporary office complex.

Some of the features include sliding windows with roller shutters, air conditioners, comfortable flooring, power skirting, office lighting and kitchen counters and cabinetry.

These photos show the wonderful office structure in operation, with the staff enjoying the modern facilities and the beautifully established gardens contributing to the aesthetic appeal of the large office complex. All in all, this comprehensive project took Ufudu Zambia only three months to complete, with the WFP expressing their satisfaction regarding their new premises.
